

Theme of the month: The Lipid Profile

CHOLESTEROL

LIPIDS are the fatty constituents of our cells and sources of energy. Two important lipids are cholesterol and triglycerides, and keeping them under control is important for our health. If we have too much cholesterol, it deposits on the walls of the arteries, forming plaque which obstructs blood flow, with risks for the cardiovascular system (good HDL cholesterol removes excess cholesterol, bad LDL cholesterol deposits cholesterol on the walls of the blood vessels). A high concentration of triglycerides is also associated with the development of cardiovascular disease. High levels of blood lipids do not produce any symptoms: having a blood test is the only way to detect this problem.
