

Anaemia

Anaemia is a condition characterised by a decrease in red blood cells or haemoglobin in the blood, or both, resulting in the blood's reduced ability to deliver enough oxygen to the various tissues of the body.

While initially presenting no symptoms, anaemia leads to fatigue, pallor and general malaise, and may also cause irregular or accelerated heartbeats and shortness of breath.

Anaemia can be caused by a deficiency of iron, vitamin B12 or folic acid.
